He Shouldn't Say It

some of what President De Gaulle says when he gives his French views on the world might be true, least of all what he says about the United States.

How could anyone in American take the man seriously when he says this country has an aversion for all colonialism that is not its own? He must be blinded by his own narrow nationalism not to see the difference between French colonialism in what used to be French Indo-China and America resistance to Communist takeover of that segment of Indo-China now called South Viet Nam.

Certainly he can see the difference between the United States maintaining a garrison state in South Korea and the kind the good thing the United States is doing-

Americans aren't supposed to admit that of garrison states France, Briain, Germany, Italy and the Netherlands used to operate in the era of Colonialism.

> How could he be so blind as not to see the difference between the United States following a giveaway policy that looks like altruism to its taxpayers and the policies of other world powers that lost so much money protecting their tottering colonial empires against Communists and nationalists that they finally wriggled off the hook to avoid bankruptcy?

> Only a Charles de Gaulle, with his deepseated capacity for hurting feelings, could be so blind as not to see that colonialism was the bad thing other nations did, not

War In the City Streets

The quality that distinguishes the outbreaks in New York from true civil rights demonstrations is their core of sheer rage. Police in other cities might have even less success in putting down what amounts to insurrection.

Police operations in recent years fortunately have provided new equipment and training. Radio and teletype communication have improved coordination of personnel. A policeman using a small walkie-talkie can bring a dozen fellow officers to his assistance within minutes.

Police in some cities carry pocket transistor radios on which they receive but cannot send messages. Some years ago

Swimming Safety

Drownings claimed the lives of at least 10 Ohioans over the weekend and two more persons drowned yesterday near Sebring. The threat of drowning is a hazard that is ever present when people swim, especially during these hot summer days.

The Salem Red Cross Chapter points out, however, that the basic rules of water safety should be known to everyone old enough to read. They are the fundamentals: Never swim alone. Don't swim just after eating or when overly tired. Don't overestimate your ability and endurance; Swim at protected pools or beaches under supervision of a trained lifeguard. Never dive into unknown waters, and if a boat overturns, stay with it and don't try to swim to shore.

If you get into trouble in the water, DON'T PANIC. Keep your head, float on your back and paddle gently.

Cleveland police reduced thefts of automobiles from 300 to 80 cases a month by use of the handie-talkie, a portable radiotelephone which enabled policemen at observation posts to signal pursuit cars stationed five or six blocks away.

A MORE controversial development is the use of the police dog. German shepherd dogs have long been used for police work in Europe. In the past decade, a growing number of U.S. police forces have added K-9 corps. The dogs are trained to work with a single policeman who usually houses the dog in his own home.

Police dogs are taught to bring down a fugitive by the arm or leg but not to inflict injury. Nevertheless, use of dogs to clear streets, particularly in Jackson, Miss., has been severely criticized.

Interest in special training of police for riot control has been heightened by racial conflicts. A Southern Regional Council report attributes the success of some Southern cities in keeping down street disorders during periods of racial tension to the effectiveness of such training and of preparations for possible emergencies. An important element of the training is impressing on police officers the need for impartial dealing with both white and black demonstrators.

TO COPE with the street crime issue raised at San Francisco by Sen. Goldwater, former President Eisenhower and Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, police will need all the advantages of training, technique, and equipment that can be given to them.

The last time anything like this happened was after the outrage in Dallas last November. In the awful remorse that engulfed the nation after the assassination of President Kennedy, the whole Dallas community and indeed the national community of extremists was held accountable.

When feelings had cooled off, it was clear this indictment of a city and a way of thinking wocld not be supported by the evidence. The crime committed by Lee Harvey Oswald was in own

THE VIEWS of Dallas people cannot be ascribed to the views of Texas people, Southwestern people, or the American people as a whole.

The rest of us are not jointly responsible for what our brothers and sisters do. We have no more authority over them than they have over us.

Those of us who are white cannot order our fellow whites to behave in accordance with out standards, nor we in accordance with theirs. We could no more stop a Lee Harvey Oswald from committing his atrocity than Negroes can stop one of their

We whites cannt stop the Ku Kluxers. We couldn't stop the Bundists or the Fascists. We could only apologize if we felt apologetic, or gloat if that's how we felt. We can't even stop the commies, who have been with us since the 1920s.

American Negroes come in as many varieties as American whites. It is unreasonable to hold them jointly responsible, yet on every side this is being done not only by chronic critics but people who never gave two thoughts to Negroes and their problems before.

THIS IS A knife with two edges. Negroes are doing it, too - blaming all whites for the antics of individuals inciting hatred of all whites because some whites deserve to be hated.

This is a terrible and dangerous thing, and it will have terrible and dangerous consequences unless neutralized by what reasonableness may survive after our politicians have quit agitating issues that divide us.

We must firm up our chances of survival by personal resolutions not to let this thing happen.

We should hereby solemnly resolve in the light of all human wisdom and Divine Guidance that we will not let the brotherhood of man be undermined by "mass" hatred - that we will not affront the dignity of the human race by bringing mass indictments for the crimes of individuals.

ACCRA, Ghana There are many subversion centers in Africa but the least known is in Bungalow No. 20 ovr on Seventh Ave., here tegah, works openly because he is the personal agent of Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah.

The latter, a strange man who goes to juju black magic seances to invoke geni, hopes to use Bungalow 20 as the springboard for continental revolution and the creation of a Communist United States of Africa.

Bungalow 20 is the political factory for the forging of new "Workers and Farmers" parties in other lands which now are anti-Communist and eager to cooperate with the U.S., England, France and West Ger-

There is no one to check on President Nkrumah's heavy expenditures for gun running and export of instant political prefabricated parties. He is Big Brother. He is absolute ruler.

HIS SECRET POLICE network is in the complete image of the old Stalinist and new Communist China thought control commissars. It is unprecedented in this western section of Africa-whose nations he seeks to control.

President Nkrumah has created a system of internal spies made up of "Brigadiers, Young Pioneers," and vehicular informers.

The latter are secret political police who act as taxi drivers. Or they are assigned to ride buses all day, listening to the citizenry. Those who complain about the dictato: ship or criticize any of its internal or external policies are arrested and imprisoned without trial. There are thousands in Ghanaian prisons today.

They are jailed in the dead of night under the "rumor mongering" law. Nkrumah himself decides what a rumor is and actually has personnally passed sentence on many of those arrested for speaking aloud about matters which offend

There is no court system as other nations know it. Mr Nkrumah is the Law. He dismissed the chief justice, Sir Arku Korsah, and Justice Akufo Addo as well as Judges Blay, Bossman, and Prempeh. Then he had a law passed which permits him not only to appoin and dismiss the entire judiciary but to act as the final court of appeals with power to reverse all court decisions.

THIS IS of considerable significance to the Americans who have invested heavily in Ghana. It means that there is no system of contracts, since President Nkrumar can simply abrogate agreements involving scores of millions of U.S. business's dollars.

Not only has he wiped out the authority of courts, but, most startling in Africa, Mr. Nkrumah has destroyed the political power of the tribes-the GaAdangbe, Krobo, Ewe, Akwaprusi and Dagomba, as well as the northern tribes.

He has dissolved the pro-U.S. United party. He has jailed such former national leaders as the former ministers of information and of foreign affairs and the sister of the former finance minister and her husband. All of those people were close to him. In prison, too, are Chief S.

Dombo, former leader of the minority in parliament, William Ofori-Atta, a United party leader and Dr. Kuta-Dankwa. The latter was mysteriously jailed simply because he was a friend of the ousted minister of foreign affairs.

Most of these men are friendly to the Western democraciesnations in which President Nkrumah now has emissaries seeking investments in Ghana.

THERE HAVE BEEN so many such mysterious arrests that the terror slogan is "One o'clock!" Cabinet ministers and other officials rush to the radio at that hour to hear if they or anyone in their families have been dismissed or criticized. When "One o'clock" is over they know they have survivedat least for the 24 hours until the next grim "One o'clock," when they may suddenly become un-persons.

Even those who survive live in a political strait jacket. Nkrumah's imagination-and There is no freedom of move-mu, Asante, Fante, Akan, Mam- ment. Citizens don't leave this country without exit permits, which are becoming scarcer by the hour.

There is only one political organization, the Convention People's party, of which "Big Brother" is supreme leader.

There is no freedom of union organization or commercial rights. This is controlled by the government under the Industrial Relations Act.

WITH GHANA under absolute control, President Nkrumah has been able to concentrate on attempts to overthrow peaceful governments along this west coast and some of them east of here. There is evidence that he has run guns, money and agents into Togo, Liberia, the Ivory Coast, Nigeria, Sierra Leone, the Cameroons and the Congo (Leopoldville).

Now he plans to plant political parties inside these nations and even as far east as Kenya on the Indian Ocean. These parties are being organized in Bungalow 20, which officially is the headquarters of the All African Trade Union Federation.

On June 27, Mr. Nkrumah's mysterious agent and adviser, John Tettegah, flew to Geneva in an attempt to win international recognition of his "federation" so its agents could sit in United Nations organizations There is no limit to Mr.

three times as many children 14 and under are being admitted to mental hospitals annually. The suicide rate among teenagers is up sharply.

Though a drop in the number of total patients in mental institutions is expected by 1970, patients in the 10-24 age range are expected to increase.

CONCERNED WITH this trend, research men at the National Institute of Mental Health have been analyzing new investigations on how "disturbed." mentally ill and delinqunt teenagers get that way.

This research has turned up these tentative findings on teenagers by individual investigators: (A good deal of this work has not yet been fully verified by backup research).

Moving from poor to good housing does not, on the average, result in measurable emotional improvement of the teenager and his family. In fact, the neuroses of teenagers may increase with improved housing.

High school boys who later schizophrenic were became found to have less interest in girls than the average teen-Parents of teen-agers tend to

An unpublished study made at being hospitalized because of severe emotional problems in the period of their first separation from their parents during the freshman year of college. Studies indicate the parents of many of these disturbed young people are themselves highly anxious persons deeply concerned about their own ability to cope with life's problems.

A GOOD MANY researchers are coming to believe increasingly in the importance of fathers to teen-agers.

One investigator finds the problems of teen-age girls in "identifying themselves" as women are greatly increased when there is no father in the home. Another group of investigators finds that a high frequency of theft and personal crime tends to occur in those societies where the young boy is limited in forming a close relationship with his father.

There are indications, some researchers believe, that it is better for a boy to admire something in even a bad father than not to admire him at all. As one investigator puts it

"If the father is bank president, he's the best bank president. If he's a mechanic, he's the best. If he's a thief, he's the best thief in town. He's the strongest man in the block or he's the best fisherman or the best whittler or something."

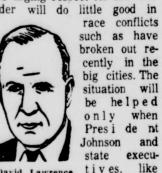

INVESTIGATORS have been working with monkeys to better understand why teen-agers and their parents act the way they do. Some have found that how teen-agers urn ou is srongly affeced by the relationship they had with their mothers during babyhood.

One investigator reports that female monkeys who as infants received no mother love "become helpless, hopeless, heartless mothers, devoid, or almost totally devoid, of any maternal feeling."

Time for Action

By DAVID LAWRENCE Platitudes and hortatory statements deploring violence and urging respect for law and order will do little good in state execu-David Lawrence tives, like New York's Governor Rockefeller, begin to brush aside their political sensitivity and start coming to grips with the root of the whole problem - the abuse of the so-called right of public demonstration.

A dispatch over the wires of the UPI last Saturday afternoon tells in a nutshell the story of what's happening and why. It read as follows

New York - A Negro group led by an admitted Communist today went ahead with plans for a Harlem rally despite orders from the police commissioner prohibiting demonstrations by the group. . . . 'The Harlem Defense Council is led by William Epton, who says he is a Communist and recently taunted police by saying 'there is nothing they can do' about political beliefs." Epton, who is 32 years old, later was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. He was released on $500 bond and brdered to appear for a hearing on Aug. 7.

IN SOMEWHAT similar cases in the South the Supreme Court of the United States has found technical reasons for reversing convictions for disorderly conduct and trespassing on private property and, of course, all the Communists keep fully informed about such proceedings and then taunt the police with statements that Communists are just another political party" and can claim 'constitutional rights."

The present Supreme Court has upheld the right to demonstrate but unfortunately has ignored the long established precedents in which rulings were made that it is unlawful to incite to violence. There is nothing wrong with demonstrations in a mass meeting held in a hall or an arena, where any person who wishes can attend and listen to speeches.

There is something potentially dangerous about a street demonstration which embitters and offends people whose involvement is involuntary as they happen to be in the area or as their homes are invaded and their places of business are looted.

Former President Eisenhower said in a press conference last year that every group 'has a right to bring to the attention of the public is dissatisfactions when its rights are not recognized and allowed to be protect life and property.

exercised," but that 'when they go to the extent of irritating, exacerbating the situation. then I think we've had a little bit of a step back."

THE SENSIBLE leaders of the Negro organizations today find themselves hindered by groups that are incited by Communists and other militant organizers who are confident they will not be punished because they can rely for immunity on the "right to demonstrate" as interpreted by the Supreme Court today.

Leaders of the Naional Association for the Advancement of Colored People, on the other hand, have begged persons to stay off the streets during critical times in their communities. The Chicago Defender, a large newspaper of Negro ownership, has just called for a moratorium on demonstrations.

The United Press International a few days ago told of the chairman of the New York State district committee of the Communist party being photographed with another Communist as they attended a protest rally at which one leader, Tesse Gray, called for "guerrilla warfare" against he police.

Mr. Gray has taken the Fifth Amendment before the House Committee on Un-American Activities at least 20 times when asked about his Communist activities.

The head of the NAACP's New York branch is quoted as saying that 'the Communists find out who is taking the wildest, and then jump in with

There are, of course, plenty of 'hate' groups without Communist connections, whose instinct is to resort to violence when they become angry.

WHEN WILL the Supreme Court, however, see the trend toward widespread internal disorder due to its own faulty decisions and become realistic

When will the phony issue of 'police brutality" be dealt with courageously everywhere by the issuance of city ordinances prohibiting all kinds of street demonstrations at a time when public feeling has become so embittered over any issue that violence is inevitable? And in cities where the local police might prove inadequate, why do not the governors mobilize the state militia beforehand at known places of coming trouble, instead of waiting till after the outbreak to take action?

The basc issue cannot be ignored any longer, despite its political embarrassments. For the American people are beginning to see that the looting of stores, with damages running into the millions, has very little to do with the merits of any civil rights question but has everything to do with the ageold problem of crushing crime by any measures of law enforcement deemed necssary to

What to do about 5 minor crises that can stall a summer trip

(Another service from the Shell Oil Company and its dealers)

1. What to do if your car won't start

- Make sure your gear selector lever is in neutral. If it is, jiggle the lever. It's surprising how often that will help.
- Turn off the radio, lights-everything electrical. That takes the strain off the battery.
- Wait a full minute. Be patient a rest will help the battery work better.
- Press accelerator to the floor-once only -then let it up again. That will bring your automatic choke into operation.
- Turn the starting key. Hold it while you count slowly (one count per second) to fifteen. If your engine still shows no sign of life, it may be flooded. Don't pump the accelerator-that will flood it even more! Instead, press the accelerator to the floor and hold it there while the starter cranks the engine.

2. What to do if your engine boils over

Stop immediately. Turn off the engine. Lift the hood and let things cool for fifteen minutes. Then, cover your hand with a rag, stand at arm's length from the radiator cap, and unscrew the cap slowly to the first stop. (You'll feel it click.) Wait until the hissing and gurgling stop. Take the cap off. Start the engine and let it idle.

Then pour water slowly into the radiator. If there is no water available, wait for a full 15 minutes. Then drive under 40 miles an hour for one mile. No farther. Stop. Turn the engine off for another fifteen minutes. Then drive one more mile. And so on, until you reach help.

3. What to do if a tire needs changing

Remember these tips to help make tire changing safer and easier.

- · Park off road-in gear, parking brake on.
- · Place a fairly large piece of wood or a good-sized stone in front of and behind the wheel diagonally opposite the one you're changing. That'll keep the car from rolling.
- Unscrew each nut one turn before jacking up the car. If you cannot budge the nuts, make sure you're turning them the right way. Some cars have right-hand threads on the right-hand side, and lefthand threads on the other.

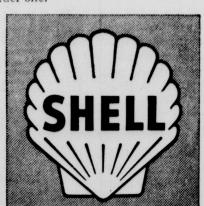

4. What to do if you get stuck in mud or sand

First thing to try is the back-and-forth rock: Put the car in reverse and apply power gently. As soon as the wheels just start to spin, shift into forward gear. Ease forward until the wheels just spin again. Then reverse. Keep rocking back and forth until you're out. If rocking doesn't free you, place sticks or branches to make a path in front of and under both rear wheels. Start the car forward slowly, and gradually increase speed. By the time you reach the end of your path, you should have enough momentum to carry you forward.

5. How to avoid getting lost

You can avoid getting lost in strange country by having Shell prepare a free personalized Route Kit especially for your trip. In addition to easy-to-follow maps giving your choice of the most scenic or the most direct routes, you get information about accommodations along the way, plus a handy expense record to help you keep track of how much you're spending.
